Crime

By Laura C. McCormick

On Saturday afternoon, the video machines in the South Building were vandalized.

Corporal Robert Lack of the University of Toronto Police apprehended two males trying to break into the money boxes of the machines.

Three of the four machines in the snack bar by the Meeting Place were tampered with.

Corporal Lack said both of the men were arrested and charged with theft under $1,000. The punishment, if convicted, is six months to a year. Both men have extensive criminal records.

The police learned of the thieves' activities when the alarm on the third machine was tripped.

Rob Dunford, the External Director of the Erindale College Student Union (ECSU) commented that ECSU was very lucky because the money boxes had been emptied recently. The maximum amount the thieves could have taken was only $50.

Phil Small, the owner of the machines was called immediately after the police apprehended the two men. Small had the three machines fixed by late evening.

Potential Presidents

By Averil Guiste

Al Smith

M II: What are your objectives for ECSU '86/87?

A. Smith: As you know, I'm running as an Independent. It's a little different in my platform in the fact that a lot of the other ideas belong to the directorships. I'm just there to oversee and tell people where to go. I want to bring some fun and spirit to Erindale so it can manifest itself in a bigger way. Basically, my job is to oversee, to be creative, to help out, give ideas and to work with the administration. I think that's a basic need of this college, and I think I can bring it to this college.

M II: What are your proposals for alleviating the problem of underfunding at the Library?

A. Smith: if you heard my speech, you heard my idea of subsidizing the Library through beersales. Erindalians like drinking beer. Again, the Library issue is up to the students; that's why there is a Referendum. Whatever the students pick I'll abide by.

M II: How do you propose to lobby the administration to implement the Meeting Place renovation plan?

A. Smith: A few big parties I guess. A wine and cheese party at my house with themes like the 60's, Hawaian luaus. Once they're drunk, I'll hit them for the money. Once again, I think a student voice can help that situation.

Danielle Hurst

M II: What are your objectives for ECSU '86/87?
Hurst: As our campaign slogan says, "ingenuity" and "accessibility". We want to do a lot of things that haven't been done before, like the Ivy League Exchange. I've been speaking with Brown University in Rhode Island and what we want to do is go down there for 4 or 5 days, and have them come up here. They are very interested in doing it, and hopefully we could make it work. As far as accessibility goes, a lot of people are scared to walk into ECSU. What we want to do is have ECSU open houses each term, get rid of this ECSU clique.

M II: What are your proposals for alleviating the problem of underfunding at the Library?
Hurst: As you know, the Library Referendum is coming up. Hopefully that will pass. This is not a proposal that specifically concerns the Library, but something we want to do in all areas is have more fundraising. We don't do enough fundraising. Also, it's a way to get the community involved.

M II: How do you propose to lobby the administration to implement the Meeting Place renovation plan?
Hurst: That's hard because what happens with Erindale College's budget is that all the Capital Budget Proposals go to Simcoe Hall. Simcoe Hall says "yes" or "no". The Meeting Place is on a priority and on the list. There are a couple avenues we can look into. One is working with University Affairs, which is one of the new super commissions at SAC and getting them behind us because they're a big lobbying group. And also lobbying the student voice that sits on the Governing Council.

Mark Deacon

M II: What are your objectives for ECSU '86/87?
Deacon: Communication with the students. Keep the ECSU Council open to the students. We're there because of the students; without them, we would have nothing. The only was ECSU can run a successful year, is by listening to the needs and wants of the students.

M II What are your proposals for alleviating the problem of underfunding at the Library?
Deacon: Team Deacon fully endorses the Library Enhancement Fund Proposal for a $10.00 increase in incidental fees. We especially like the idea of how the $10.00 will be broken up into $5.00 for immediate help to the Library for increased journals; and $5.00 for the perpetuating fund for a new structure and for major purposes. We have also decided to run special events that would be geared to any money made to be given to the Library. Fundraising in regard to trips, with any profits realized, being specifically said before, given to the Library.

M II: How do you propose to lobby the administration to implement the Meeting Place renovation plan?
DEACON: I am on the Meeting Place Renovation Committee. Right now, it is 5 on fifth on the Capital Priorities List. Something has to be done through petitioning and through continued pressure by us with the administration. If is the focal point of our campus, and something has to be done about it. I like the proposals put forth by College Affairs, however, I question the cost at times. Right now, during our constraint period, even just to clean up the Meeting Place without the major renovations, would be fully endorsed.

EDITORIAL

Last Wednesday at noon in the Meeting Place, those Erindalians present were exposed to three hours of ECSU election speeches and the question period that followed. In general, the candidates were nervous and many had not logged sufficient hours in public speaking to brand them as seasoned toastmasters. The speeches for the most part came across as egocentric and redundant.

Three hours of rhetoric is a severe test for even the most involved and attentive, and many did not stay for the entire forum.

The reason for the length of the forum this year is that a total of 27 people are running for the 11 positions on ECSU. This is a rare, and encouraging, problem. It is a refreshing thought that so many are concerned enough to devote a large part of next year to furthering the quality of Erindale life, both academically and socially. Moreover, those 27 epitomize a much larger group of Erindalians. Each of the 27 have many other helping with the campaign.

This is how we successfully improve our educational experience. Scholarship funds and library recovery are a result of credible and welcomed student input on the Erindale College Council (ECC) Academic Affairs, College Affairs and the soon to be Student Life committee.

I would like to be the first to invite those who are not elected to council to continue to maintain their dedication but direct it into other areas of the college which are equally deserving of their participation. Win or lose the election, they are winners just the same for their willingness and devotion to enhance the lives of their fellow students.

Christianity a historical faith

Michael Horner is an MA student in Philosophy at the U of T. On Tuesday, January 21, 1986, in the meeting Place of Scarborough College, Horner lectured on the question of "Did Jesus of Nazareth physically rise from the grave?"

An article by Vince Decaen appearing in The Underground on Jan. 28th summarized Horner's lecture adequately, but the important point which Decaen's article raised is that the heart of the Christian faith is based in historical fact. Whether or not Jesus was raised from the grave should not be relativized [sic] to a personal belief, but should be decided upon in a similar way as one draws the conclusion that JFK is dead - regardless of how JFK may live on in our hearts, minds, and videotapes. If you can establish the fact that Jesus did not receive a new life after his death on the cross, then you can show the Christian that his/her faith is in vain. Perhaps this is one of the reasons why there were a surprising number of "sceptics" in the Scarborough audience, according to Decaen's observation.

Since Horner has been invited to speak at Erindale College by Campus Crusade for Christ (CCC), Erindale College Chinese Christian Fellowship(ECCCF), and Erindale College Christian Fellowship(ECF), the time has come for Erindale's sceptics, agnostics, and atheists to come together and challenge the evidence that Horner has for the existence of God and for Jesus' resurrection. A word of caution though, Horner is an experienced speaker for Campus Crusade; he has lectured at universities all across Canada in an attempt to 'win' students and faculty 'to Christ'. Horner will be in the Meeting Place at 12 p.m. on Thurs. March 20th to respond to the question, "Is there scientific evidence for the existence of God?", and at 6pm he will be in Rm. 3131 to speak on the topic, "Did Jesus really rise from the dead?"

Political Science at Erindale

What is to be the fate of the discipline of Political Science at Erindale? This is a question that weigh s on the minds of political Science specialists at this college. Every year the political Science student seems to find fewer and fewer courses to choose from in the calendar. This year there are only seventeen courses available and it is no longer possible to finish a specialist degree solely with Erindale courses. A degree requires two fourth year courses yet there is only one available at Erindale. This is in contrast to the dozens of third and fourth year courses available downtown. the positive side of this is that Political Science students are forced to venture downtown thus experiencing life on the St. George Campus. However, one should have a choice. Erindale has a superb Political Science staff with some of the most respected professors in the country. Many would like to see this department expanded with a wider range of courses available to the students. If the trend continues Political Science could cease to be a discipline at Erindale in the not too distant future. The voice of political Science students must be heard to save the academic quality at Erindale.

Endowment Winner

To the students of Erindale College
May I take this opportunity to thank you for providing an award such as the Erindale College Student Endowment Fund. As one of this year's winners, I find it truly an honour to have been chosen from among so many worthy candidates. As a firm believer in student, involvement, both on and off-campus, I beleive that our college allows its students the opportunity to involve themselves like no other U of T college. I urge you to become involved in clubs, student administration, sports and your resident community. As all of them are in need of your active support. There is a great deal of satisfaction achieved when you participate in any activity, something which I hope each and everyone of you will experience. Once again thank you.

Response to Review

I object to Nolan A. Machan's ill-founded review of the recent French Club production of Le Bal des Voleurs. Your reviewers assertions notwithstanding, it is simply not so that Lady Hurf, a wealthy British holidayer, is "one of (Vichy's) leading citizens"; nor that the three thieves - who come from Paris, are "of the town (Vichy)"; nor that the town crier is a "young man(who)steps out and tells the audience that the park is located in the town of Vichy". Such basic inaccuracies, which pepper a rambling paraphrase punctuated also by regrettable "Anyway's", do not do justice to an impressive production of a major French text by Erindale students. Although Mr. Machan may have gone along with Anouih's intentional playfulness in this text which regularly confuses appearances and reality, I have the unfortunate impression that he made the above mistakes because he simply doesn't understand French that well. Surely Medium II can do better.

Winners: Henderson & Benakopolous

by Janet Edwards

The recipients of Erindale's second annual Student Endowment Award were announced last week. George Benakopolous and Michelle Henderson were considered the most deserving of the $1,000.00 prizes and were nominated by the Student Endowment Award Committee. The Office of Scholarships and Awards agreed and approved the submission.

Mr. Benakopolous demonstrated unmistakeable commitment to both the campus and the community at large. The list of his involvement includes his role as President of the Political Economy Student Union, a senior advisor to the Panhellenic community and Church Youth Groups, an instructor of Sunday School and manager for minor league soccer and T-ball. George is an active member of many campus clubs. He is presently initiating a Greek Club for the Erindale College.

Michelle's willingness to get involved has resulted in her extensive interest at Erindale and in the community. She participated as a leader for the September 1984 Orientation. That same year she was appointed as a Residence don and served as a peer advisor to residence students and assisted in the introduction of the Don Bruncheon and Speakers Series. Other activities include being a member of Residence Council, Academic Affairs and P.A.S.U.S. and a volunteer aerobics instructor.

In the community, Miss Henderson volunteers for the Ministry of Correctional Services as a probations officer and works with mentally retarded and disabled children.

In-depth Report: Future of the faculty of Architecture

by Denise Barnard

On February 20, Provost Joan Foley made public her report on the future of the Faculty of Architecture and Landscape Architecture which recommended the closure of the Faculty. The report assesses the Faculty in areas such as quality (of instruction/research , students, facilities/equipment), institutional role(in terms of demand for access, graduates and research) and feasibility. The report's basic conclusions were that, in terms of quality, the Faculty was lacking in the areas of research and that, in terms of facilities, equipment and library holdings, improvements were necessary and that this necessitated an increase in funding.

The Report also stated that in terms of its institutional role, the Faculty had low levels of interaction with the various other parts of the university. With the issues of demand for graduates and for research, it was felt that with both concerns the demand was low. In a final assessment, the Report concluded that $500,000 would be needed initially and would have to be increased to about $1.3 million by the time of full implementation. As a result of all findings, the Provost's report recommended that steps leading to closure of the faculty at a future date would start to be taken.

Helen Logan, a member of the Architecture Students' Union, stated that the Students' initial response was that the arguments presented in the Report were flawed and that there was, generally a misunderstanding of student protest. Logan said that most of the action taken by students, especially the boycott, were in support of the new curriculum implemented in 1982.

In past years, the Faculty had come under fire and was in need of changes, in order to broaden the scope of study and increase the number of support courses. With the implementation of the new curriculum, support courses were strengthened and there was a general tightening up of the academic program. The new curriculum provided a new, younger teaching staff which Logan said has been positive and that as a result of this the "quality of output has been very high and the potential amazing."

In terms of the Report's flaws, Logan said that the Report didn't acknowledge the new curriculum and rather, was aimed at the school of five years ago. She also said that the new administration in the faculty had been endangering the new curriculum which the Union felt was the fault of the university administration which had not properly assessed the leadership issue. Logan also felt that the issue of internal factionalism was "highly overrated" and added that in the last 3 years this factionalism had been reduced and that staff were behind one another on the issue of leadership and what they needed and wanted from a leader. Logan cited leadership as central to students' concerns about the new program and said that the boycott was the result of not having appropriate leadership.

The Students' Union supported an external review of the new curriculum and felt that the new curriculum was "of good quality and good potential." According to Logan, the Union, felt the Faculty would come through with "flying colours."

Logan also cited other flaws in the Report. She said that there was a progression in both faculties toward greater integration with the rest of the University, in that, Architecture students are required to take 5 courses outside of the Faculty. Logan also stated that the "report was far from being complete about professional awards" since not all work was in competition and therefore not published.

She said that the major strength of the new program was the teachers who were mainly part-time instructors, who were also working professional architects. Logan felt that it was important to stress that "student actions have been in support of the (new) program" which they want to see continue. She also added that the Administration's report was only a recommendation was not final.

This is the first of a two-part series exploring the future of the faculty of Architecture and Landscape Architecture. The second part will appear next week.

from the news desk

Did you go to the Election Forum last Wednesday?
I did.
Did you stay for the whole thing?
I didn't.

Unfortunately, I had other obligations. Like most other people, three hours represents a large chunk of my day. Of course, it depends on when these three hours are. From 6 to 9 o'clock in the morning is not that big a chunk but from noon to 3 o' clock, now that is a major piece of my day.

I can think of many things to do in that time: go to the pub, go to the Library or even go to a class. You might even consider this the prime time of my day especially since this is essay season.

So, do I have three hours to sit around listening to candidates for our Student Union ramble on? While ECSU is a terribly important facet of my life, and elections for this body are looming in the future, I'm afraid I can put three hours to a much better use. (Like watching paint dry.)

I also don't know anyone with an attention span three hours long. Our classes are only 50 minutes, even two hour class have a break after 50 minutes to stretch our legs. Some people can't even stay awake that long.

At this point, you say "But news desk, what is the answer?"

I think, perhaps, the forum should have been spread over two days. The presidential and vice-presidential candidates should have spoken on one day. An hour and a half would be sufficient for platforms and questions. Then the following day all the other candidates could speak. I think this would be a much better use of our time and more people would hang around for the whole forum.

Blitzkrieg:

By Rob

In February 1974. Blitzkrieg, a play by Brian Wade concerning the mysterious relationship between Eva Braun and Adolf Hitler, was performed at the Tarragon Theatre. The play was considered too sexually perverse and exhausting for the audience. This week, a small group of daring actors will revive Wade's "love" story under the direction of Rob Costigan.

The play focuses mainly on Eva, the lonely mistress of the Third Reich. There is a curious mixture of perverse sexual behaviour, degradation and naive romantic fantasies, which gives the play its tension.

"It's time Erindale had a slight jolt," said Rob Costigan. "The play is certainly not safe theatre like Neil Simon. Blitzkrieg revolves around sexual power. Although the actions are extreme, the underlying truth is that many relationships contain power struggles, though the struggles are mind games and are not translated into action.The problem is that too many people are afraid of the darker sides of their personalities. The word "Psycho-drama" does not imply a Hitchcockian tone, but rather the drama or conflict that exists in our minds."

The opening play, The Informer of Bertolt Brecht is a farce about the paranoia that preys on a family during wartime. The play will be performed: Thursday March 20th (noon), Friday 21st (8:00pm), and Saturday 22 (8:00pm).

Censorship:Mixed Blood

By Rene Rouleau

The 'brutal violence' and 'explicit drugs' depicted in Paul Morrissey's Mixed Blood prompted The Ontario Film and Video Review Board's two attempts to ban the film. Eventually a special three week screening at the Bloor Cinema was held to judge the contents. This overwrought controversy only served to arouse people's curiosity and ensured a successful screening of the film. Mixed Blood earns the success. The disturbingly real violence creates an intensity for Morrissey's depection of his delightful social criticisms and ironies.

The film focuses on a drug dealing gang in Alphabet City, the Lower East Side of New York. The imperious leader of the gang, Rita La Punta (Marilia Pera) imagines herself as the den mother of an adopted family. This self-image adds some rather absurd but - given her character - plausible scenes. Her fear that the neighbourhood will doubt her capacity for mothering are reflected in her tendency to discipline her "boys" on personal hygiene. This common obsession of our Middle class society, is inconsistent with the squalor in which they live and with the filth of the 'family' business. Rita's character seems difficult to reconcile given her uncompromising pompousness which leads to the unnecessary trouble she eventually unleashes upon her family; coupled with her domineering, forbidding role towards her full grown son, Thiago. Yet, we like how she maintains control of the business, becoming the 'Maude' of the local drug market. Pera's outstanding performance as this eccentic character adds to the realistic depiction of the absurd business practices of drug dealing.

From the outset of the film, violence and death prevail in this underworld. This protrayal is not new to the movie industry. But the accomodating attitudes these people unconsciously adopt, though perverse, are also somewhat humane. The shadows of our own social manners that accompany these attitudes, seduces the audience into accepting them. Their seemingly callous disregard for life seems natural in light of their environment.

Mixed Blood humour lies in Morrissey's unique protrayal of a drug culture. An environment which should seem so alien to us but instead resembles some of our domestic and social behaviour.

YES!

By Katherine Meandro

Are you tired of travelling into metro Toronto to see a play? Wouldn't it be fabulous if Mississauga had a theatre company of its own? Well, we finally do! The West-End Studio Theatre founded in January of this year promises to bring professional quality theatre right to our doorstep. The first production - "Suddenly Last Summer" will debut on March 27 at the Erindale College Theatre.

Yo Mustafa, founder and artistic director of the company will be producing plays that can be enjoyed by all. Mustafa says they will be doing, ".....everything from musical theatre to theatre of the absurd." A junior company will be started to do plays in the summer time - to go to summer camps and senior citizen's homes. Mustafa has already had an enthusiastic response from the public. People have called him and offered to help in any way that they can.

Note that the company is a "Studio", not just a theatre company. Mustafa will be bringing professional people to do workshops. He wants the studio to be a place for learning, and he wants kids training in theatre to have it as a working area and a place to meet other artists.

The studio is presently located at the Dixie Plaza, but Mustafa plans on moving into a larger space encompassing both his studio and his own theatre. (You will notice that Mississauga presently doesn't have a theatre for our hopeful company to play in)

Mustafa plans on giving Mississauga at least two good quality productions annually. All you hopeful young artists will be glad to know that the auditions will be open to the public - so watch for upcoming works.

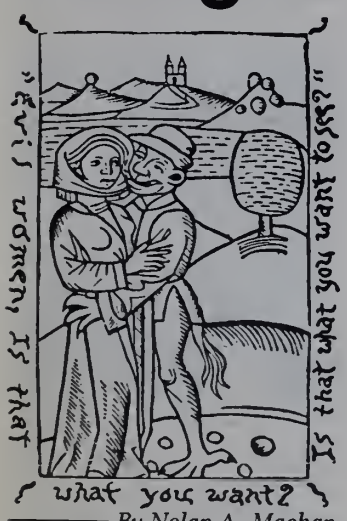
Vinegar Tom



By Nolan A. Machan

Vinegar Tom is a play which deals with a number of interesting topics, but it particularly deals with the idea of witches and how they were discovered. Unfortunately, the play was performed only from March 11th to the 16th. Hopefully, the graduate centre for the study of drama, will think about allowing their plays to run from mid-week to mid-week, or even better for two weeks.

The play itself, was fun and yet, presented a statement. There were a few problems with the production last Friday night, and they were mainly with the period the piece was put in. Patricia Ives decided to set the play in Medievil dress, which created, at times, confusion, because of the style of writing that Caryl Churchill uses for her script. The piece almost demands modern dress, in order that the current issues of the play are not lost.

The first character presented to the audience is Alice, played by Joanna Field who did a great job. Alice is a lady, who has been abused by the town's people for being a little lousewith her private parts. She lives with her mother, Betty(Lezlie Wade), who is a widow of very little means. Alice also has a child whom she loves very much, but is never seen.

Alice and her mother are accused by the town folk of being witches. The people who do most of the accusing are their neighbours, Jack and Margery. These two characters represent a funny, yet brutal reality. They are funny, because of their, at times, total ignorance and perception of life. They are also brutal by the same ignorance, because it is through their ignorance that they manage to harm two very innocent people, by accusing them of being witches.

It is through the ignorance of a mass of people can hurt innocent people that Caryl Churchill brings a current day problem out of an ancient one. Vinegar Tom is an enjoyable play, which except for a few problems, the graduate centre for the study of drama produced to an adequate level.

Glen Smith - Vice President Administration Candidate

He is presently a fourth year specialist student in Political Science and History. This year he is ECSU chairman along with other involvement such as the Student Endowment Fund and Graduation committees, E.C.C., CFRE D.J., model parliament campaign manager, past president of PECSU and recently acclaimed as Vice-President of the Erindale Liberal Club. His involvement at Erindale and management experience in the work place have laid the ground work to be able to assume the administrative duties at ECSU. He is a candidate who will stress the accesibility of ECSU to the students and serve the students in their interest.

Richard Gray: Vice-President Administration - Team Deacon
-Second year Political Science Specialist
-Chairman Residence Council; Finance and Social Committees
-Assistant Manager/Programme Director CFRE
-Erindale Run Committee
-ECC

Running for ECSU requires incredible dedication and time commitment. Since November I have been prepared to run for Vice-president of Administration. I will approach the position in a most responsible manner. Participation in a number of ECSU events this past year and my experiences gained as an ECSU employee have combined to give me a good feel for the Corporation.

Chris Stringer - V.P. Adminstration
- create a stronger Erindale identity through the implementation of club pamphlets
- more academic awards
-more ECSU sponsored events, i.e. Trips to Lulus, more diverse winter carnival etc.
- stop the apathetic vote
- help break the ticket

Don Berardinucci: Community Relations Director-Team Deacon
-Second year Biology
-Student Endowment Fund Committee
-U of T Spirit Challenge
-Orientation(2years)
-High School SAC President

Key Ideas:
-increase Erindale's presence in the community through:
1. cooperation with campus relations office
2. widening channels of communication via local media outlets eg. Roger's Cable 10, radio stations, and a weekly column in Mississauga news
3. Blitz the local shopping malls by setting up booths to promote Erindale as an integral element of the community and an attractive choice for high school students
4. implement new associations with the government of Mississauga in order to make Erindale College more visible and influential at the municipal level.

My name is Derrick Hempel and I'm running for Community Relations Director.

We need the support of our community in the underfunding battle. I believe I am capable of soliciting that support by encouraging student participation in the community

School Involvement:
-orientation, Erindale Football, Homecoming Construction crew
Blind Duck Planning Committee, Winter Carnival, Ball Hockey, Drama Club.

Proposals:
-plan events with local community groups
-coordinate student involvement
-insitute Student Community Participation Award
-effective use of MYAC
-use community information services

I'm a 1st year student and resident of Mississauga I feel that my campaign as independent has proven to Erindale students I'm capable of contributing to ECSU as an individual.

John David

One of the most important things a VP Finance concentrates on is the planning for the future of the corporation. While immediate concerns such as increasing overhead costs and skyrocketing insurance premiums are crucial, making sure that ECSU is financially stable after he or she leaves is a no.1 priority. One of the ways to ensure this stability is to provide for continuity in the organization; increase student awareness and involvement in regard to ECSU's financial affairs early on in their university careers and the continuity and experience necessary to run such a large corporation will be ensured.

ERIC LAWTON
ASSISTANT FINANCE DIRECTOR
INDEPENDENT

No long list of qualifications unfortunately, just a clear head and lots of practical stuff.

My major asset is that I'm in my 3rd. year of an Economics Specialist program where I deal with cost and policy problems literally every day. I'm so responsible and practical it's scary.

With my background I know clearly when something is feasible or how to get the most out of it.

I'd be balance to other people's grandiose plans, and make certain our student council spends our money wisely. No guff. So vote for me and put me in there.

Heidi Goss - Community Relations

Community relations- What does it mean to me? Making contact with members of the Mississauga Community. Fund Raising events and improving Erindale's influence in the community.

What have I doneas FASA secretary, ECC, Orientation leader, campus tours, shinerama, homecoming, Erindale's run for the future. Public relations coordinator of a heritage conservation display for the city of Mississauga. What do I want to do for you? I'd like to get your input on what events you'd like to see for Erinforum. I'd like to get other students involved in events of a community relations nature. One of my personal goals is to set up a spirit group on campus similar to the blue and white society. I'm proud to be at Erindale and I want other U of T colleges to be aware of our extraordinary enthusiasm and spirit.

Cam Currie: Assistance Finance Director - Team Deacon
-First year Commerce, major in Finance
-Graduate of a Business Management Marketing programme with Honours standing
-graduate of Canadian Securities Course offered by the Vancouver Stock Exchange
-High school President of the Men's Hi-Y
-Fall Retreat and Graduation committees.

Key Ideas:
to increase the use of Marketing and Full disclosure
In Marketing: increase research to determine how you want your dollars spent Under Full Disclosure: present to the students how those dollars are spent. By doing so, students will have a better understanding of how their dollars are being allocated. Moreover, students will be assured that ECSU is acting on behalf of the students.

Hi, my name is Mike Lem and I'm running for the position of Assistant Finance with Hurst and Company. I'm a third year Commerce Specialist with an Economic major. Thus in degree qualification alone I'm the best suited for the job. As well over the years I've sat on various councils like ECC, Residence Council Social and I've run numerous events for charity; the last being the Miami Vice Pub where I raised over one thousand dollars for the cerebral palsey. As assistant finance I would create an ECSU Financial advisory Committee where students could both, gain beneficial work experience and also contribute valuable input. As well I would improve and diversify the Blind Duck menu and attempt to move towards a license allowing the pub to admit the increasing number of under age students, -for qualification-for organizational talent-and for accessibility.

Helio, I'm Rosalind Fooks
I'm running for External Director with Team Deacon. It has been said that a whole is a sum of its parts, here this is not entirely true. U of T is more than the sum of its campuses. It's communication that links them together. When channels become blocked the entire system suffers and campuses become isolated. I would like to integrate Erindale into U of T and I plan to take a new approach, if SAC won't come to us, we'll go to SAC. Allow me to help you.

Erindale's image downtown and with the community has room for improvement. The community considers us a college on the same scale as Seneca College and the word URINDALE is written on the SAC Walkway. Let's work together to improve our image and improve student accessability to all U of T services. We pay for them so let's use them by finding out what they are. Vote for active leadership; vote Marc Guldner as your External Director. You can't always get what you want, but if you vote just right.... you just might find... you get what you need.

We've heard it all before. The rhetoric and the ideas. I feel most candidates are playing it safe, avoiding controversial concerns. I feel the following ideas for my position and ECSU are realistic, accomplishable, specific and pertinent.

-establish Inter-campus Communications Network with student society directors.
-push the Meeting Place renovations.
-install Teleguide terminals.
-yearly review - ECSU-medium II agreement ensured.
-designated Driver Program, Blind Duck.
de-emphasize alcohol at university events.
-insure the review of the Parking Ancillary Fund and subsequently re-desig-$700,000 to Library Capital Fund and reduce parking expenses by 45% from present

Michelle Henderson: Academic Director- Team Deacon
-Third year specializing in both Psychology and exceptionality in Human Learning
-Residence Don(2 years)
-Member: Residence Council, Social Committee, Academic Affairs (3 yrs), ECC, Pub Planning Committee
- Erindale Fitness Instructor
-Tour Guide/High School Liason Ambassador
-Participant: Homecoming, Orientation(Leader),Winter Carnival, Library Dance-a-thon
-Winner 1985-86 Student Endowment Fund Award

Key ideas:
-implement a non-profit second-hand textbook swap
-continue Academic orientation
-implement student advisor programme where senior students from various disciplines assist students as informal counsellors
-increase academic policy awareness
-full support of library enhancement referendum

Catherine Mustard
Academic Director
Hurst and Co. Catherine is a 3rd yr. English Specialist. She has been, and is presently involved in various campus clubs and activities. She has participated in the Dean's Humanities Committee and is now acting as an Humanities tutor.

Catherine would like Erindale students to become familiar with all the service provided by ECSU as academic director, she would ensure better publication of the anti-calendar and expand the tutoring to include the local highschools. She is also interested in achieving course-union representation to give students an active voice in academic affairs. Catherine is enthusiastic, very familiar with administrative procedure and more than capable of fulfilling her duties as Academic Director.

Mike Long - Social Director
3rd year B. Comm, SAC Director, Chairman of SAC - Erindale Committee, Blind Duck Advisory Board, Policy Chairman - PC Club, Orientation, Karate & Philosophy Clubs, CASE, Residence Council Finance Committee.

A Social Advisory Committee will be formed to advise and implement social events. An orientation while a Band Advisory Committee will help select and book bands. These committees will be open to all students and will help spur student involvement. The number of bands appearing at the Pub will increase by booking bands from the CFNY and Q107 contests. This will establish a friday night tradition by keeping the cover charge as low as possible ie. 1 or 2 dollars.

Charles Massey
Running for External Director with Hurst and Company

Why I want to be your External Director in a Hundred words or less. Tough assignment but here it goes. My name is Charles Massey and I'm running with Hurst and Company.

I'm a residence Don, Erindale representative on SAC, 2 years experience in public relations and I've worked in a Psychiatric Hospital.

I want to encourage interaction Erindale and the other U of T colleges, for example a pub exchange. Also through better advertising of Erindale events, get more people to come out to Erindale and see our spirit.

Glen Birks
Communications & Employment
Hurst & Company

Ineffective communications of eventsand employment information is a major problem. One which I would like to see rectified in the coming year. If I am given the opportunity next year as your communications and employment director, I will experiment with different mediums of advertisement. One idea, which is a likely possibility, is a mobile sign board to increase student awareness. Another project is a job handbook. This handbook will include a listing of the various part-time jobs available on the campus and other opportunities for involvement in the community, be it volunteer work or jobs with the city.

Jill Watson - Cultural Director

I want to see two things done at Erindale. Those are; to improve club awareness(especially with the frosh), and improve club communications. The latter being achieved through the implementation of a model United Nations organization. More of Erindale's energy needs to be put into the promotion of it's clubs.

My experience and in volvement in several clubs has taught me the importance of strong executives and enthusiastic members. Erindale has these kinds of people, it's just a matter of getting them involved.

Rob Dunford: Social Director-'team Deacon
-Fourth year Economics
-ECSU External Director(85-
-SAC Director, ECC

-Student Involvement Committees
-Orientation, Homecoming(4 years)

A good Social Director must know what the students want. Instruments are available for his/her use. My experience is my greatest asset. I've worked within the frame work of the corporation. I know ECSU.

Rajni Agarwal
Cultural Director(Team Deacon)
3rd year Psychology &Crime & Deviance Student
--Blood Donor Clinics
--organizer of Hospital for Sick Children Benefits (2yrs)
Members of:
--Vis-a-Vis(Secretary)
--Indian Student Association
--Board of Publishers for Medium II
--Erindale Run Committee

Key Ideas:
*Stage Erindale Caravan: a multicultural festival
*Publish a Club (INFO-handbook"
*Bi-monthly info-sessions with the club representatives and the cultural director *lobby for special food service & liquor privileges for on campus clubs.

Sean Dolan - Media Director - Hurst and Company

Campus media is the foremost communicative voice at Erindale College and should be handled with the respect and trust it deserves. The recently incorporated Medium II, will have a new relationship with ECSU next year. As Media Director I will be in contact with the newspaper as often as is necessary to discuss pertinent student issues. I will rely on the discretion of the editor to print what is newsworthy. With their decision to apply for a very low power FM licence, CFRE is in process of moving towards wider distribution on campus. Seeing that this venture will take at least 6 months to establish immediate distribution problems should be handled now (i.e., repairing speakers in the North Club Room and cafeteria). By communicating and cooperating with these two main student voices (as well as the U of T newspaper and other media) a wider knowledge of ECSU and college affairs can be achieved.

Stan Yep(Team Deacon's Media Director)

As Media Director, I would; 1. promote CFRE to increase the efficiency of distribution (so all students can "tune-in"); 2. improve CFRE DJ's at the pub; 3. maintain a business and social relationship with medium II

I believe I can follow through on these ideas because I would consider my ECSU position as a full-time job(which involves responsibility and hard work) and because of my experience at CFRE as the Advertising and Promotions Directors.

I chose to run with Team Deacon because they represent the diversity of Erindale's student body.

Janet MacLeod: Communication & Employment

As a first year student at Erindale, I realized that knowing about all events and services at Erindale is a rather difficult task. As communication and employment director I will ensure that being aware of campus events is much easier for next years students, than it was for me.

The following are just some of the ideas with which I hope to attain my goal:
*A suggestion box attached to the ECSU signboard.
*Special distribution boxes for the ECSU Flyer
*Monthly event calanders on the ECSU wall
*Improved North building advertising.

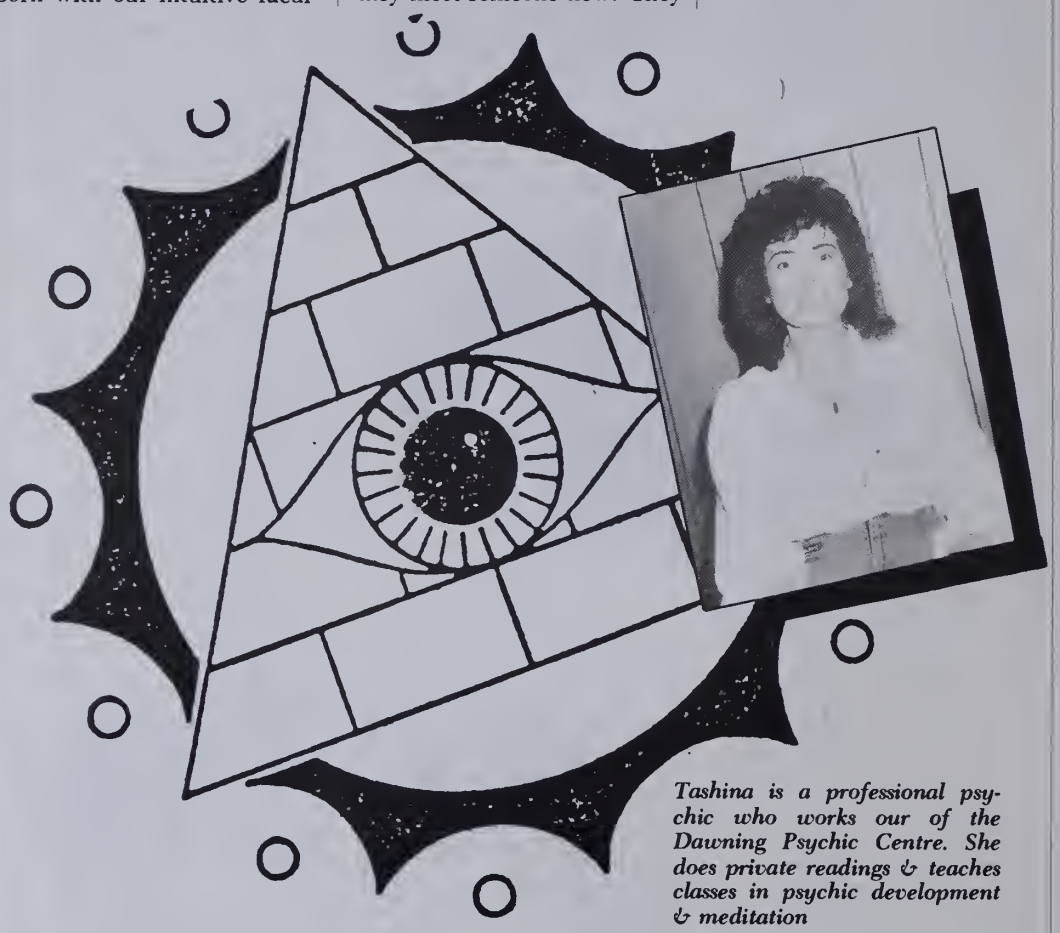
Learn to develop your own psychic mind

By Tashina

It seems that when I first tell a new friend that I am psychic, I get varying degrees of two specific types of reactions. The most common one is fear. This seems to be based on a belief that if someone is psychic, they know everything that you are thinking about. We all have skeletons in our closets that we do not want anyone else to know about - so when we think a person can see these skeletons, we have a sense of forebodding. We have been taught that "everyone is out to get us" so that psychic person is surely going to drag out our skeletons & wave them widely about & embarass us to death . The second reaction is adoration (or love). This could mean that we want to set this person up on a pedastal to worship. "Wow! You're psychic. Tell me everything that is going to happen to me for the rest of my life."

Both extreme examples are to show the typical idea of power that is evoked with the word psychic. Depending on the individual's background package (what they have been taught), they will either reject or revere the idea that there is such a thing as psychic phenomena.

My own opinion after having investigated this realm most thoroughly for the last 10 years is that both of these attitudes are simply extreme emotional reactions to a perfectly normal natural part of us all. I believe that we are all psychic. I beleive that we are born with our intuitive faculties intact & it is only through the parental, educational and cultural conditioning that is present during our "formative years" that we retain or lose this natural ability. I have observed small babies when they meet someone new. They not only look at the face of the individual but also gaze around the person's head and scan their whole body. This is known as "scanning the aura" in psychic terms. In this way, the child can determine whether or not to trust the new aquaintance.



Tashina is a professional psychic who works our of the Dawning Psychic Centre. She does private readings & teaches classes in psychic development & meditation

We may think that this is a wonderful gift & that this person who is psychic must be an extraordinarily wonderful or godly person in order to receive such a gift.

I would like to take this opportunity to debunk some of the previously mentioned reactions by saying that just because a person has retained or developed, their psychic ability does not mean that they know everything about you nor does it mean that they are in any way more godly or special. If you know how to type a letter & I do not, does that mean that you have been given a gift from some divine being? No, it simply means that you have worked hard to perfect a skill that is beneficial to you. This is the way that I approach the psychic field. Anyone with an open mind & a willingness to explore the realm beyond the physical dimension can do so. It is perhaps wise to do so in the companionship of a trusted friend or teacher, so that you will have a second opinion about what is going on. Consequently, you won't feel like "a stranger in a strange land"- but it is not completely essential.

Psychic impressions may be experienced in many different ways.

Psychic impressions may be experienced in many different ways. The most common one seems to be that of Clairvoyance which means "clear seeing". This is when we have a picture come into our mind that we have not created. This is like a waking dream. It differs from imagination in the fact that we do not feel that we can control the images. This makes us afraid that we are "losing control of our minds" so we may not want to let that happen because we have heard so many stories of mental cases. This is different; in that it is a fleeting image that you may accept or reject depending on your attitude towards it. We must only remember that it is our choice whether or not we wish to accept or reject the pictures that come in. We are in control! We can observe a bank robbery in progress on television but that does not mean that we are going to go out & rob a bank. The same applies for the clairvoyant impressions that we receive. The choice is ours whether we wish to follow through with the ideas, or throw them in the garbage can.

This usually is distressing to non-believers because they can't disregard the issue.

The next most common psychic impression seems to be that of feelings. I often hear people tell of getting a funny feeling about something. "I was going to go into this bar & I felt a cold chill go up my spine so I went to the one down the street instead." This person is obviously used to these sensations & trusts their validity. It is important to check out all the possibilities however, so that you don't just live your life based on "feelings" about other people & situations. The feeling level is only one of our faculties, it needs to be respected as such & not thought of as the most important faculty. The "feelings" or body sensations should be checked out to see what that particular sensation means to you. A cold chill to me is not necessarily ominous. It usually means that I am really getting close to something important. I often get one in a reading as a confirmation of what I have said to a client especially if the client is trying to tell me that what I have said is not correct It usually tells me that the information is correct but that the client just does not want to admit to it. Often, I find that if I let it go for the moment, I can reword it differently & it will be accepted.

You may accept or reject the image depending on your attitude towards it.

The third is hearing voices or tappings- this is called clairaudience. This usually is most distressing to non-believers because they can no longer disregard the subject. They have been trained to respect that which they have heard "with their own ears." I personally do not

Fire walkers experience no pain

By Laura Busheikin
reprinted from the Ubyssey
Canadian University Press

On an otherwise normal Saturday night this October, twenty people walked across a 15 foot stretch of burning embers in the back lot of a hotel in Burnaby, B.C.

Most of them felt no pain and suffered no burns. Several of them burnt their feet slightly, yet still claimed that they were glad that they had walked on fire.

The workshop had begun several hours earlier in a room in the Sky-line Hotel. The workshop leader, David Boone, has been teaching firewalking for two years. he led the workshop with calm self-confidence. The workshop ranges through relaxation techniques, creative visualization, conjuring tricks, zen stories, and more. Boone gently and amiably tires to convince his listeners that they can walk on coals without being burnt, and that it will be good for them.

Most of the people at the workshop were 'normal people'. No one was wearing robes or beads or sandals, and no one sat in the lotus position and said 'ohm'. Some of them had been to firewalking workshops before. Some were involved in parapsychology and alternative medicine. Several of them were University of B.C. students. I talked to one who wished to remain anonymous. She suggests the pseudonym of Dolores Newton. Dolores is a charming yet somehow curious third year English student. She attended the workshop with no intention of actually walking on the coals, and says she's never gone to "anything like this before."

L.B.:Why did you go then?
DN: Curiousity. I wanted to see what it was all about. And thought it might help me, just to be there.
LB: Help you how, exactly?
DN: Get over my fears, as David said. Help remind me that much more is possible than we let ourselves believe, help me understand that limits can be pushed through so easily.
LB: And has it done that?
DN: God, yeah, I mean, hey, I just walked on coals, y'knowl(She giggles).

The main thrust of the workshop is conquering fear. Boone explains that fear is a conditioned program which can be changed. The enlighted person, he says, doesn't regard fear as a barrier. Many of our fears, he says, are based on inappropriate programming and limit us unnecessarily. Once someone has transcended their fear of fire and walked on coals, it ought to help them reexamine their other limitations.
LB: What was it that made you walk, if you weren't planning to?
DN: That's a hard question to answer... lots of things... David made it seem so natural. It was nice that he didn't get up and act like a preacher, or like he was pushing a miracle. He made me believe that walking on fire was natural. And I took the risks into account; I thought that I could end up like the guy David mentioned, who ended up in a wheel chair for six weeks and and to have skin grafts...I never forgot that that might happen to me, but I was 99% sure that it wouldn't.

I was dying to know how I'd feel afterwards. The firewalking became a metaphor for life...there's always a chance that the worst may happen, but if you don't go for it, if you don't do what you really want to do, then you stand still. If you don't go for it you have no chance of anything bad happening to you, but then you have no chance of anything wonderful happening to you either.
LB:How do you feel now, after walking on fire?
DN:(Giggles)High. Really high. Kind of in a daze. I guess I need time to assimilate the experience... But I feel really good. (She giggles again). Except my foot hurts like hell.
The bubbly Dolores has a 2 inch blister on her left foot.
LB: So you did burn yourself. Doesn't that invalidate the whole thing?
DN: No...it just hurts. Why didn't the other foot burn? Why didn't that guy's (she points to one of the other firewalkers)feet burn? He walked five times, and moved a lot slower than me. Why aren't I in the hospital? One little burn is nothing. I guess I got burnt because I wasn't 100% confident.
LB: What did you feel as you approached the coals?
DN:(giggles)Wow...well I was amazed at myself, thinking, "Am I really doing this?" I had to throw a lot of stuff away, almost go blank. I looked at the coals in front of me...wow, this is amazing, remembering this...for half a second I did see them as hot, burning, threatening coals, then I thought, I am going to walk on those, and I'm not going to be burnt. And then I just walked. It was like diving off a high diving board, only a lot more intense.
LB:How did the coals feel?
DN:It didn't feel like anything much until about half way through, then I felt my foot burn. I didn't panic, I just thought, shit, I'm burning myself, and hurried to ther other end of the coals.

Firewalking is becoming a fad. it has even been mentioned in People magazine. Since Tolly Berkand first introduced firewalking to North America, 50,000 people have walked on coals. Skeptics theorize that the ashes of the coals insulate the heat, or that the feet sweat, and the sweat becomes steam which creates a shield between the foot and the coals.

Leon Hawrylenko, who organized the firewalk said, "I've walked twice now, but always there was this doubt in the back of my mind: are the caol really hot? So when no one was out there tonight I threw a piece of baloney on the embers, and it burnt to nothing in about ten seconds."
DN: Of course the coals are hot:We built the fire ourselves.
LB:How finally did you account for the fact that you walked on hot embers and didn't burn yourself badly?
DN: I think it's a very down-to-earth thing really, there's nothing mystical about it. David talked about quantum physics, and about mood and sensation altering chemicals released by the brain...I think eventually it will be explained in scientific terms. That shouldn't lessen its miraculousness. David talked about Christopher Columbus. Most of the people of his time were as convinced that the world was flat as we are convinced that hot coals will burn us. Those people couldn't conceive of another dimension. It's the same with people today and firewalking.
LB:So do you feel that some sort of miracle has happened to you?
DN: No...the most important thing, the only thing which might be close to miraculous, is getting over the fear. It's not the walking on fire itself that is important.
LB: Will this change your life at all?
DN:I don't know yet. Probably not in any obvious way...I'll still have to do homework tomorrow and get up and go to classes and go to work like usual. But I think I'll feel pretty high for a while.
LB: And you'll have a sore foot.
DN: Yeah.
LB: Would you do it again?
DN: I don't think so...maybe.. well, yeah, I just might I don't know.(giggles).

understand why we place more validity on hearing which goes on in our brain & seeing which is also a brain function but this seems to be true. The most common clair-audience(clear hearing) phennomena seems to be that of hearing someone call your name. If you are brave enough to listen at this point, you may be able to hear the voice of someone on an invisible telephone talking to you. Here again you must remember that you are in control & therefore you can hang up the phone any time you wish. Also be aware that you do not "have to" listen to the advise of your unseen friend any more than you "have to" listen to the next door neighbour who thinks that they know how to run your life.

People use many different tools to develop focus on their psychic ability. One of the most common ones for beginners is psychometry or the holding of a personal object that belongs to someone else. This can be achieved by holding hands also. I like to cross hands while facing - this keeps the energy flowing & grounded. Some people use tarot cards which are picture cards instead of the regular playing cards with just symbols. There are many different drawn by different artists but the general meaning for each card is usually consistent. Of course there is the crystal ball gazing technique but that is a fairly expensive method. It is possible to do the same kind of thing in a glass of water. Just defocus your eyes & let your mind go blank & check out what you see with the other person or in your own life.

While you are exploring your psychic ability, remember -- it is a fun game that can enhance your life if you do not take it too seriously at first until you check it out in the reality in which you live. In some circles it will be accpeted as a natural thing & others, it will be shrouded in fear & mystery. If you use it in a responsible way then it can be a fascinating experiment in understanding life from a different perspective. I feel that this brief discussion on the subject will help you to explore one psychic realm with more understanding & less fear & trepidation, so that it will enable you to return to that childlike trust of your natural ability to see beyond the physical.

dents. her involvement and enthusiasm both at ECSU and at SAC have exposed her to the main issues that face the students of U of T. In my mind, Danielle would be an excellent President, providing effective representation.

Thus, I urge everyone to support her in her bid to continue the excellence Erindale student leaders have become renowned for at this University. Philip Boland

Letter of endorsement

Political endorsement should not be taken lightly. In regards to the upcoming ECSU elections I wish to endorse the following candidates for political office: Glen Smith V.P. Administration on the Hurst ticket and Marc Guldner, running independent. My endorsement is based upon their active leadership and participation within the Political Economy Club and Student Union(PECSU). Their drive and determination make them worthy candidates for ECSU council. In casting your vote, make those choices which will best benefit our college. George Benakopoulos

Campaign rhetoric

There is a hideous creature lurking in the shadowy corridors of the South Building. By nature it is a sightless, brainless and unpredictable animal which lives on sewage. It is known for developing a blind trust in other animals only slightly higher than it on the evolutionary scale...

This Tues. and Wed. you may be approached by pollsters, Deaconites, Hursties, or Independents who will encourage you to vote in the ECSU elections. They will convince you that it is your sacred duty, your moral responsibility, your democratic trust to vote, If you tell them that you have no idea who the candidates are or what their platforms are, they'll tell you to vote anyway.

Please, under such circumstances, DO NOT VOTE!

Leave the voting to those who have at least attended the forum, looked at several platform sheets, or are otherwise competent. Those who try to convince you otherwise on the grounds of some 'sacred duty' are handing you a load of the purest sewage. They are insulting you in the worst possible manner by confusing you with that terrible creature above, called THE UNINFORMED VOTER.

Do anything- tell them you've already voted, or kick them in the shins and run, but don't let them convince you. An uninformed vote hurts Erindale and all the students who go here.

Even worse than this creature is its cousin, the BLIND SUPPORTER. It is a well established fact that if the blind supporter had two brain cells to rub together, the resulting friction would start a forest fire. This creature not only votes as above but may also devote whole days of its time, cubic yards of its air (spewing rhetoric) and maybe even other things that I can't mention here, in support of a ticket. Some of these animals don't know an external director from internal gas, but they've got an urge to fornicate with one of the ticket members, (or something) so they support them all.

If you do not act intelligently this Tues. and Wed., you will be the victim of your own ignorance.

Lawrence Barichello

If you're graduating this year and you've accepted career-oriented employment at an annual salary of $10,000 or more and have a clean credit record, you can get the American Express Card.

That's it. No strings. No gimmicks. (And even if you don't have a job right now, don't worry. This offer is still good up to 12 months after you graduate.)

Why is American Express making it easier for you to get the Card right now? Well, simply stated, we recognize your achievement and we believe in your future. And as you go up the ladder, we can help–in a lot of ways.

The Card can help you begin to establish a credit reference. And, for business, the Card is invaluable for travel and restaurants. As well as shopping for yourself.

Of course, the American Express Card is recognized around the world. So you are too.

So call 1-800-387-9666 and ask to have a Special Student Application sent to you. Or look for one on campus.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it™.

Ball Hockey: the final curtain & last ovation

By G. Moore, W. Thurner, J. Clarke, J. Menzies, D. Houghton, B. Wilson

The Playoffs: A road fraught with pitfalls and echoes of past glories. A sea of troubled waters for many teams and an oasis for some. After this week many veteran players will never don an Archie's Den jersey again. Such notables as J. Menzies, J. Belford, F. Jeffrey, G. Klein, M. Sammut, and the list goes on. The Erindale gym will be a faint memory in the corner of their minds. Many teams will go down in the annals of the game while others will rise to further glory.

The Week in Review.

In the first round of the French Conference, Soon TBD took on the Dubie Brothers. In a very good defensive battle the Soon TBD prevailed over the Dubies 2-1. Kirk "Mongoose" Bennet played hotter than a Tito Santana taco in August, but he came up a dollar short and a day late.

In the game between the Internationals and Stallions, Karl Strychaluk could not carry his team across the border into Italy as the Stallions dominated 7-3.

Switching to the Lee Conference, the Killer Bees stung the WWF with an unpredicted but impressive defeat, with their best outing of the year. It was a bad week overall for Varsity players. It was a stellar performance by Larry Tyndall in net and a fine showing by the swarming offense. The Bees won 7-6 in a shootout, on a goal by Tom Murczek.

In the other game, Members Only, playing a typical Bruins game, outworked the Zots and squeezed out a 3-2 victory.

Moving on to the second round; in a clash of the Titans, Wingnuts once again proved they are the team to beat, as they pulled together to earn a hard fought 5-3 victory over Members Only.

In another quarter final match up; the fans were treated to a fine game as Meat & Co. scored two early goals and then hung on to defeat the Killer Bees 2-1. Hence, the Killer Bees flew south for the winter.

In the French Conference, Red Army wanted to silence a lot of critics as they came up against their first test. They passed with flying colours pummeling the hapless Stallions 10-3.

Soon TBD had the first major upset as they shocked the over rated Raiderettes 4-2.

Heading into the semi-finals in the French Conference many people looked to Red Army to take it all but were left with their heads spinning, as the army met their Waterloo. In the first shocker Soon TBD triumphed 7-1. Still confident going into game number two, Red Army was again beaten by a hustling Soon TBD squad, 7-5. In the words of immortal Jeff Belford "In the first game my defense let me down and in the second game I returned the favour."

Wingnuts moved one step closer to defending their title as they took the first game of their semi-final 6-5 over Meat & Co, because they had the eleventh and final shot on net.

Women lose in the finals...

In the most exciting playoff hockey action since the 1972 Canada-Russia series, Erindale's women's ice hockey team advanced to the finals only to lose a hard fought battle to St. Mike's.

The first round matched third placed Erindale against second placed and favoured PHE. However hard work and determined effort resulted in a tied game at the end of regulation time. Amy McNulty was the lone goal scorer for Erindale during the regulation game. In sudden death overtime both teams had their chance to win the game but the goaltenders kept their teams in the game. The game was forced into sudden death penalty shots.

The first three shooters from each team were stopped however Erindale did hit the post twice. The fourth shooter for Erindale was Marilyn Strain who potted a beauty in the top of the net. PHE followed with a lucky goal to tie the score. April Tomczak went next and scored on a lovely shot. PHE had a chance to tie it but Shirlene Campbell made a great save to put Erindale in the finals.

Pitted against St. Mike's in a best of 3 finals, Erindale got off to a bad start and lost the first game. In the second game Amy McNulty scored twice as the game ended in a 2-2 tie. Unfortunately in overtime St. Mike's scored to win the game and the championship.

The coaches were extremely pleased with the effort of their players this year and are attempting to have the team represent Canada at the '88 Olympics in Calgary.

But men still in the hunt

By Frank Jeffrey

Although Erindale Warriors men's "A" hockey team ended the latter part of the season on a losing note, they entered the playoffs full of desire. After a fourth place finish they beat Victoria College 3-2 in a sudden-death playoff game. Next, they faced the Engineers, who edged Scarborough for first place. After demolishing them 8-3 in the first game, the two teams skated to a 5-5 draw in the second game of the two-game total goal series.

Scarborough and Erindale scramble around the Erindale net.

Erindale has now moved on to the finals against Scarborough. Dino Mavrou opened the scoring in the first minute with a low slapshot to the corner. Scarborough fought back in the second period with two quick goals to take the lead 3-2. But the game was tied up with an awesome drive by Randy Koroll from the point. The game ended 3-3 and both teams prepared for overtime. But the referees informed the coaches that it was a 4-point series not a 2 out of 3. Series stands at one point aside. The next game is Monday night at 7:00pm, then the third game will be Wednesday. Both games are at Varsity Arena.

All Washed UP

By Glenn Moore

After a monumentous start this season the Erindale waterpolo team was dragged out of the playoffs last Monday. In a double-overtime game, the Erindale heroes came up on the short end of a 7-6 score to Vic College. All members are to be congratulated on a fine game and a great season. In the final game goal scorers for Erindale were Tom Wloka and Marc Guldner with a pair each, Glenn Moore and Danielle Hurst collected singles in the losing cause. Team members included Glenn "I'm open" Moore, Dean "Where's Marc" Fox, Amanda "Holly Body" Darwood, Marc "Keep Dean afloat" Guldner, Tom "T-bone" Bolland, Morris "White Magic" Diminutto, Danielle "Hugs and Kisses" Hurst, Darlene "He's too big" Johnson, Steve "The Blade" Mirando and Tom "⅔ of my goals this season" Wloka.

Referendum Result

Results of the Erindale College Athletic and Recreation Association referendum to increase the athletic incidental fee by $10.00 per student were: In Favour 226; Opposed 53. 81% of the students who voted were in favour of the referendum.
